

BS EN ISO 14001 Environmental Policy

Elliott is a leading manufacturer and supplier of building systems throughout the UK. In common with the rest of the manufacturing and construction sector, Elliott has a significant direct impact upon the environment as a result of operational activities. We therefore need to manage waste, energy and water consumption, procurement of goods and services, and the transport of goods and people.

The company recognises it has a duty to help protect the environment for both the present and the future. This 'Duty of Care' is actively endorsed by Elliott and is embodied in a company wide commitment to ensure any environmental impact is minimised.

In striving for environmental excellence we are committed to continual environmental improvement, pollution prevention and compliance with legislative requirements.

Through contact with national government departments, industry regulators and trade associations we aim to be at the forefront of legislative developments. Our processes will continue to develop with the aid of working practices to meet both our legal and social obligations.

The company will actively promote the 'Principle of Sustainable Development' through the following measures:

Elliott will endeavour to:

- Manufacture all products taking into account ISO 14001 environmental requirements and maintain leadership in the development of new products, where possible, procuring materials from sustainable sources
- Support initiatives that benefit the environment
- Meet and exceed all relevant environmental legislation and introduce company standards where legislation does not exist
- Seek to reduce the consumption of raw materials in all operations through recycling and reuse
- Through our commitment to training, we will educate and motivate our employees to work in an environmentally responsible manner
- Continue to be a responsible employee and good neighbour
- Liaise with suppliers and customers to improve the company's environmental performance
- Review the environmental objectives and targets of the company periodically
- Review the contents of this policy annually and amend if necessary

To meet these responsibilities, the company environmental performance is monitored continually, through individual divisions, at board level and at management meetings. Regular audits and reviews will assess our environmental performance against current best practice. The targets and results will be published in an annual report. Relevant information is provided to our employees, the local community, regulating authorities and other relevant interested parties.
